

U.S. Navy Photo

WHAT WE DO

Awards college transcripts and degree paths to Sailors in select technical fields that they may use the knowledge and skills acquired in the Navy to pursue careers after separating from service.

Bachelor Degree Plans

Bachelors of Science in Health Sciences (BSHS) applies to the following Navy programs:

- Advanced Tactical Provider (SOF)
- Independent Duty Corpsman (Submarine)
- Independent Duty Corpsman (Surface) Effective May 2021
- Nuclear Medicine Technologist

Associate Degree Plans

Associate of Science in Health Sciences (ASHS) applies to the following Navy programs:

- Cardiovascular Technician
- Emergency Medical Services SOF (SOCM)
- Histology Technician
- Medical Laboratory Technician
- Neurodiagnostic Technologist
- Occupational Therapy Assistant
- Opticianry
- Pharmacy Technician
- Preventive Medicine Technician
- Radiation Health Technician
- Radiologic Technician
- Respiratory Therapy
- Urology Technician
- Aerospace Physiology Technician
- Aerospace Medical Technician

Other Affiliated Programs

Non-Degree path programs with transcripts

- Hospital Corpsman, Basic
- Independent Duty Corpsman (Submarine Alternate)

The College of Allied Health Sciences, in coordination with its branch campuses and other instructional services sites, such as Medical Education and Training Campus (METC) and Naval Medical Forces Development Command (NMFDC) in San Antonio, TX, allows servicemembers to apply their training as well as previously completed coursework toward a recognized, accredited degree opening doors to a successful, fulfilling career in the military and beyond.

