RMKS/1. This award recognized both military and civilian logisticians who epitomized excellence in the realm of logistics and sustainment planning. These awardees ensured that the delivery of capability and sustainment to the Fleet is supported through provisioning of end-to-end logistics and sustainment support, and enabled the posturing of Navy Infrastructure and Logistics to provide persistent support in unpredictable environments. It is with great pleasure that I announce the 2025 Admiral Stan Arthur Award Winners:

- a. The 2025 Junior Civilian Logistics and Sustainment Professional of the Year is Michael A. Stein, PAE Strategic Systems Programs.
- b. The 2025 Senior Civilian Logistics and Sustainment Professional of the Year is James D. Wimpee, F-35 Lightning II Joint Program Office, Naval Air Systems Command.
- c. The 2025 Military Enlisted Logistics and Sustainment Professional of the Year is MSgt Michael L. Sanders, USMC, Program Executive Office, Unmanned Aviation and Strike Weapons, Naval Air Systems Command.
- d. The 2025 Military Officer Logistics and Sustainment Professional of the Year is LCDR Cameron C. Meier, SC, Special Operations Command, Europe.
- e. The 2025 Logistics and Sustainment Team of the Year is the J4 from Joint Special Operations Command.

2. These awardees exemplify the importance of logistics to achieving the Navy's mission and innovating across the Doctrine, Organization, Training, Material, Leadership, Personnel, Facilities, and Policy spectrum to advance our competitive edge over adversaries.
