1. Introduction. The Navy's dynamic manpower and personnel demands make it imperative for enlisted Sailors to understand the variety of flexible service options available. Various continuum of service opportunities for Active Component (AC) and Reserve Component (RC) enlisted Service members are designed to support seamless transition between the AC and RC, and maximize talent reutilization within the total force.

2. Purpose. This article introduces an overview of enlisted component change programs and recall of RC members to active duty (ACDU) as full-time support (FTS). A component change is an indefinite transfer to another component requiring an enlistment contract change. Recall of an RC member to FTS is a career ACDU program requiring an ACDU enlistment contract. In contrast, a temporary or definite recall is not a career ACDU program, as it is effective for a temporary/definite period of time; refer to references (a) through (c) for further guidance. The following articles contain specific policies, procedures and eligibility requirements:
